

LATE LIEUTENANT FRANK MORROGH,

whose death at the Dardanelles will be sincerely regretted by the extremely large circle of his friends.

(Photo by Brooke Hughes, Cork).

were, and he thought they should refer the question to a Committee, because the operation, if undertaken by the Board, would involve considerable financial arrangements. They had a very large amount of Consols, and the details would require to be dealt with very carefully. It was one of the most serious matters that had turned up for a long time with respect to their position, having regard to their investments.

Mr Newsom suggested that the Secretary should draw up a report on the subject and submit it to them.

The Secretary said he would do so provided he was empowered to bring in their auditor, Mr Kilkenny, to assist him.

To this, the Board assented, and Mr Newsom's suggestion was agreed to.

Some minor matters having been dealt with, the Board adjourned.

CORK DROWNING: THE INQUEST.
BRAVERY COMMENDED.

Mr. Coroner Wm. Murphy, s.e., held an inquest at Miss Coffey's publichouse, Kyril's street yesterday into the circumstances of the death of John Bruton, aged 9 years, son of Jerh. Bruton, 7 Riordan's Court, off Kyril's st., who was drowned while bathing in the river near the Opera House the previous evening. Acting-Sergeant Conran and Constables Lyons and Beasley represented the police.

Robert Mahony, a cork-cutter, 40, Paul street, said he saw the crowd around the quays, and on hearing a boy was in the river, jumped in. He caught the body once, but it slipped away from him, and witness became exhausted himself, after he had dived several times. The body was last seen at the slip. A lifebuoy was then sent out to witness, and he was brought in in an exhausted state.

Joseph Hallissey, 19, Cockpit lane, labourer, said he was on Lavitt's quay, and saw the boy in the water, who appeared to be drowning. Witness stripped himself as quickly as possible, and dived into the water. He made four dives, but could not locate the boy's whereabouts. He hit his head against a stone, and could not dive again. The water was very dirty, and it was impossible to stay under it.

The Coroner said the witness made a very creditable effort to save the boy.

John Mahony, a fisherman, 32, Corporation Buildings, said he searched in a boat for the body, in company with Jeremiah Sullivan. They found it about 7.30, about 30 yards from the place where it was seen to disappear.

bathe in, and the Corporation had provided good bathing accommodation.

The Coroner said they all knew it was against the law. It ought to be a warning to others, but it was a bad practice to bathe in such dirty water. There were fine Corporation baths provided.

The jury returned a verdict to the effect that deceased met his death by drowning off Lavitt's quay whilst bathing, and expressed sympathy with the lad's father.

THE BALLINGEARY COLLEGE, CO. CORK.

The inquiries received up to the present indicate that there will be a large attendance at both the July and August sessions of the Munster Training College at Ballingearry this year. The cheap tours arranged by the new Irish Tourist Organisation will facilitate students coming from a distance to the college. The first session will last from the 5th to the 31st of July, and the second from the 3rd to the 31st of August. In the July session there will be special courses to suit Intermediate teachers and advanced students. These will include a course in method of teaching which will show how a text may be read for grammar, vocabulary, and idiom; how it may be used for composition, conversation and free composition; and how it may be supplemented by story, picture or newspaper. The course in phonetics will consist of a series of lectures on the nature, production and combination of sounds; and the application of phonetic theory to class reading, based upon the text chosen for the method course. In the course of the reading it will be shown how faulty pronunciation can be corrected, and common mistakes and their remedy pointed out. The course in modern Irish will embrace advanced and original composition with an inquiry into style; the reading and critical examination of a text; advanced conversation, including treatment of familiar subjects with story-telling and short debates. Text books prescribed for next year's Intermediate examination will be used. There will be similar courses in August.

During both months the phonetic work will be under the direction of Rev. Dr. O'Daly, head master, of the method under Rev. Father O'Nolan, M.A., Maynooth College. They will be assisted by a large staff. One of the great advantages claimed for Ballingearry College is that the students can live in the houses of Irish speakers, who not only provide in an excellent manner for the comfort of students, but assist them in improving their conversational knowledge of the language. The secretary will send copies of the syllabus to intending students on application to 28 Marlboro' St., Cork.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR:
LUSITANIA CRIME.
SURVIVOR'S SUGGESTION.

Sir—Now that the last stage of the Lusitania inquiry is being held I think it only right that some recognition of the splendid work done by the medical profession at Queenstown should be recognised. Col. Braddell, R.A.M.C.; Major Crofts, R.A.M.C.; Surgeon Johnson, M.O., Haulbowline; Surgeon Long, M.O., Spike Island; Drs. Hodges and O'Connor, dispensary doctors, and the stretcher-bearers from the Military Hospital, Queenstown, all spent the night and many days and nights afterwards, in alleviating the sufferings of the wounded and carrying the dead bodies out of the tugs and trawlers as they brought in their freight. I would suggest, through your paper, that the Cunard Company should at least strike a medal as a small recognition of the splendid work done by these men, who gave both their sympathy and services to help to alleviate the sufferings of the victims of the most awful tragedy that has ever occurred at Queenstown.

A "SURVIVOR."

CHEESE IN IRELAND.

Sir—In this day's issue of the "Examiner," Mr J. Landfear Lucas, Hurlingham Club, Fulham, S.W., asks if cheese has been made in Ireland in the past or at present. The directory issued by this Association in 1905 contains the name of one manufacturer of cheese, the Directory issued in 1910 contains the names of three manufacturers of cheese. I am taking the liberty of forwarding a copy of the latter to Mr J. Landfear Lucas. Yours truly,

M. A. RYAN, Hon. Secretary,
Cork Industrial Development Association,
28 Marlboro' St., Cork, June 23rd, 1915.

BELGIAN RELIEF FUND.

Sir—May I suggest through the columns of your widely read paper that the ladies of Cork hold a rose day on the 24th July to honour the Queen of the Belgians, being her birth-day, the proceeds of sale to go to the Belgian Relief Fund.

A SYMPATHISER.

IF THE HUNS WERE HERE!

The lace-makers of Belgium have suffered disastrously by the war, and thousands of women and girls who were wont to be employed making the beautiful posamer-like fabrics famous throughout the universe, are idle. Flanders has never lost its eminence as the cradle and nursery of this artistic industry. Lace-making flourished for a while in France, but after a brief period of prosperity it declined, and the Revolution of 1793 almost killed it. In Belgium, on the contrary, both pillow and point lace have always held their own, even when the country was devastated by war, but this terrible struggle has dislocated everything. The Germans have overrun the fertile land like a horde of wild beasts, and everything is reduced to waste and ruin. Just imagine what a Prussian invasion would mean for Ireland! Apart from our lace-making industries armies of girls are engaged in our great manufacturing concerns. Everyone of the millions of packets of White's Wafer Oatmeal despatched from the Clarendon Mills is handled by the collectors of the country, who there find lucrative and healthy employment. If the Huns were here things would be different.

IN STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.
REGISTRATION SCHEME.

(Central News.)

Singapore, Wednesday.

An ordinance is being introduced enforcing the registration of all British males in the Straits Settlements between 18 and 55. Those under 38 will be liable for military training and over 38 for the Civil Guard.

FOR THE PEOPLE.

The rich and creamy summer milk, the delicious stewing fruits—gooseberries, currants, raspberries, etc.—and a packet of Brown & Polson's Corn Flour, provide food for the people that is delicious, cheap and healthful—a treat to eat. Make use of the special recipe leaflet in every packet of