THE CORK EXAMINER. MONDAY MORNING, AUGUST 28, 1916.

STAFF & STUDENTS OF THE IRISH COLLEGE, BALLINGEARY

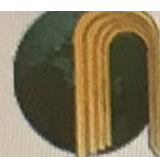

The sessions held this year at the College have been most successful, in particular that concluded last month, which it is considered established a record both in numbers attending and earnestness in their student-ship. The movement has attracted now to its fold very many University people, all of whom having come to Ballingeary as disciples go forth later as ardent apostles, each one doing its best to gain more converts. The propaganda work that is now being done by clergymen, brothers of religious orders, and other persons of similar education and refinement is not alone being the classrooms of Ballingeary but in all other Irish Colleges. The College of Ballingeary possesses a charm that out equal. It is established in the centre of glorious scenery, looking over lovely valleys and on to beautiful hills, whilst it is but within a very short cycle ride or a pleasant easy walk of Gougane Barra, Keimigbeg, and other delightful places. The sound of the chain of the picturesque lakes of Lough Beg is not fifty yards distant, and the beauty of the students' recreation consists in boating on the waters of the lakes. The tongue of the Gael and the lovely scenery of Ballingeary that has come down from old Celtic Ireland untouched and untarnished by associations foreign to it, or the other makes the study of the language in such natural surroundings a real pleasure, not a task.

COLAISTE NA MUMHAN.

At the usual nightly gathering for singing, dancing, story-telling, etc., in the Munster Training College, Ballingeary, Mr. Fionan MacColum, who has lately returned from his mission for the Gaelic League in America, spoke to the students of the College. He recounted the work done by Father O'Flanagan and himself, work not alone for the Irish language but for Irish industries. They met many Iveleary people who still spoke the language they first learned in Ballingeary district. He (Mr. MacColum) was glad to hear that all the Irish colleges were progressing and that Colaiste na Mumhan was in the forefront. Still he thought the energies of the Gaelic League generally could not be better expended than in helping and strengthening those colleges which were an inspiration to all who
